No More Consultation Bulletins to be Issued—The Doctors are of Opinion That he is Fast Nearing the Last Hour—He is Still Unconscious.

OTTAWA, 11:55 a.m.—Doctors just came out. They say there will be no bulletin issued. Sir John sinking, and it is only a matter of hours.

4:30 p.m.—Sir John's condition remains unaltered.

4:20 p.m.—Sir John's condition remains unaltered.

4:50 p.m.—Sir John still lives but cannot live much longer.

MAJORITY DECREASING.

Mr. Laurier's motion, censuring High Commissioner Tupper for leaving his post in London to take part in the Canadian elections was defeated by a vote of 79 to 100—a Government majority of 21. A few more such victories and the Government will be undone. The British Columbia representatives showed their independence by voting the straight party ticket. Whatever others will do they will serve the Government.

Mr Gordon has placed a list of questions on the order paper relative to the cost of sending "C" battery to the Wellington mines; how much was paid the E. & N. Ry. Co., the cost of subsistence, etc.

Accident in Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 6.—A serious accident happened this morning at the Gazette building, St. Francois Xavier street. The large elevator was coming down with three men on it, when something went wrong and the elevator was precipitated to the ground floor. So great was the concussion that the elevator rebounded and went back to the third floor. The occupants were terribly injured. One of them, Francis Huoth, had his back broken and cannot recover. The three men were removed to the hospital.

LONDON GOSSIP.

Another Indian Uprising in the State of Koonjhur—A Royal Match.

LONDON, June 6.—From India comes the news of another uprising, this time in the state of Koonjhur, where the rebels have swept everything before them, robbed the treasury of the Maharajah and prepared to defend themselves against British interference. The seventeenth Bengal infantry has started to put down the insurrection, which is strictly local in its character, and is believed not to be formidable. The cause of the outbreak appears to have been the conduct of the Maharajah, who has of late been oppressing his subjects with excessive taxation, partly in order to pay tribute to the British and partly for his own enrichment. He also added to the discontent by receiving a slave into his harem as a wife, thereby giving great offence to the orthodox Hindoos. The Senapatti of Manipur, who is considered chiefly responsible for the killing of commander Quinton and his party, has been put on trial before a court martial, composed of leading British officers. His fate is settled in advance, the trial being merely a formality. He will probably be hanged as a punishment, which owing to his princely rank cannot fail to make a sensation in India.

THE CZAROWITCH.

A St. Petersburg special denies that the Czarowitch is to be betrothed to the daughter of the Prince of Montenegro. It is asserted that the Prince is not in good odor at the Russian Court, in a literal as well as a figurative sense, having on the occasion of a recent visit borrowed a good deal of money which he failed to return, and shown himself careless in his personal habits in a degree second only to the unspeakable Shah. The Czar just at present is not anxious to bring the whole Montenegrin court upon himself, as its memories are as hungry as they are personally offensive, and have not entirely overcome the proclivities engendered by the generation of sheep stealing.

OPPOSED TO HERESY HUNTING.

The Bishop of Salisbury has proclaimed himself as decidedly apposed to heresy hunting. In a recent discourse he mentioned a large picture in Madrid, in which the burning of heretics was delineated as an act of true Christianity, and he said the time would come when the members of the Church of England would be ashamed of the bitterness of some of their modern controversies as the modern Spaniards were of the inquisition.

MAJOR WISSMAN'S SERVANT.

Major Wissman is knocking about Europe on a three months' furlough, with two negro servants. One of the negroes has an interesting history. He was a member of a peaceable tribe on the Upper Congo. Taken captive by another tribe who were cannibals, he was being fattened for the pot, to which several companions in a better condition had already been consigned, when the Arab slave traders made a raid on the village and carried off the inhabitants, including their intended dinner. The poor fellow was taken to the East Coast and sold to a Zanzibar merchant, who, afterwards, presented him to Major Wissman. He has accompanied the Major in all his East Africa campaigns, and is faithful and intelligent. It is said, however, that he can never pass a butcher shop without shuddering, reminding him, as it does, of cannibal orgies. Such is the story told by Lieut. Bumiller, the Major's Aide de Camp.

MR. BURDETT-COUTTS ILL.

Mr. Bartlett Burdett-Coutts has not yet fully recovered from an attack of influenza. The baroness, (his wife), who lately celebrated her 77th birthday, has returned from Bologne much improved in health and nurses her young husband with great tenderness.

The police are fastening the toils closely around Richard C. Duncan, the American accused of trying to kill his wife in Wales. It seems that the prisoner, before the tragedy, bought only one ticket for Liverpool, which the police interpret as showing that he intended to be rid of his wife on his return to America.

SENT HIM AN ELEPHANT.

Queen Victoria has presented an elephant to the Sultan of Morocco as a mark of appreciation of his promises to alleviate the evils of the slave trade in his dominions. The Sultan has sent a large force of troops to the western provinces to subdue a rebellion in that quarter.

THE SEALING QUESTION.

More Delay Expected Before a Close Season is Adopted.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—There is a fair prospect for another hitch in the Behring's Sea matter before it reaches arbitration, and there are obstacles yet to overcome before an agreement can be reached for a closed season. The bill passed by the House of Commons confers authority upon the Queen to issue a proclamation prohibiting British subjects from taking seals during a certain period; but the issuance of this proclamation is dependent upon the disposition of the Queen, or rather of Lord Salisbury. The British Government, it is understood, will insist that the United States shall be pledged to pay British subjects for any losses sustained through deprivation of sealing privileges during the closed season, if the contentions of the United States are not sustained by the arbitration. On the other hand, the British Government will probably agree to pay damages to the American Company in case a different decision is reached. Of course, the President can give no such pledge for the payment of damages, that being a matter that Congress alone can deal with, and Congress not being in session this question complicates the situation, so that it is now doubtful how the matter will be settled.

NANAIMO NEWS NOTES.

The Grand Jury's Presentment—Breaking the Law at Union Colliery.

NANAIMO, June 6.—The grand jury previous to receiving their discharge presented a lengthy petition to the judge presiding; the first item being the violation of the law at the Union Colliery, where there are still a number of Chinamen employed underground; also many other minor matters which are of interest to the citizens of Nanaimo.

His Lordship thanked the jury for the attention they had given to the various cases brought before them and promised to send their presentment to proper quarters at once where they will receive every consideration. John Paisley, the son, charged with attempting to outrage Margaret Durham, was the last case brought on yesterday. After going through part of the evidence the judge and jury took a three-mile drive out to the house where the former lives to investigate the premises, and no doubt the drive was highly enjoyed.

WHERE IS THE DRY DOCK?

Is the question being constantly asked by the masters of vessels who constantly visit this port. Some few months ago we were led to believe that every thing had been prepared to float a company to construct a dock, but like most things that are talked about in this city, it has apparently been allowed to drop into oblivion. There is no port on the Pacific Coast that needs a dry dock more than the port of Nanaimo. We have close to 70,000 tons of shipping entering the harbor monthly, and have no suitable place for them to get repairs. Yesterday the bark Wilna, Captain Slater, was compelled to put his vessel on the beach in order to attend to the necessary repairs of the vessel. Vessels that are compelled to wait here a few weeks would be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of entering a dry dock here and undergo repairs instead of losing further time at San Francisco by doing so. It is to be hoped the Board of Trade in this city will endeavor to do something in the matter by trying to float sufficient capital to allow the scheme to be worked out.

CHILIAN REBELLION.

CAPT. OF ITATA THE HERO OF THE HOUR.

He Takes the News of the Surrender of his Ship Coolly—Consultation of Admirals on Board the Baltimore—A Prize Crew to be Put on the Itata.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A special to the Herald from Iquiqui, Chili, says: Capt. Manzam, commander of the Itata, is the hero of the hour, and was given a rousing reception by the citizens when he landed and reported his arrival to the insurgent authorities. He was warmly received, too, by his superior officers, though they gave him officially the unwelcome tidings that his running away had been of no avail, and that he was to return to San Diego as a prize of the Charleston. The captain took the matter cooly and soon returned to his ship to prepare her for the surrender. In the meantime the United States consul has been officially notified that Admiral McCann could have possession of the late fugitive whenever he choose. He at once informed the Admiral of this fact and a boat's crew, in the steam launch in charge of an officer was sent to the Itata, with a request to the captain to repair aboard of the flagship Baltimore, with a view to discussing the condition of his vessel, and the stores and repairs needed to enable her to make the return trip, and to officially inform him that he was to regard his vessel as being subject to orders from the American Admiral. Of course Capt. Manzam accepted the invitation, and stepping into the launch was soon aboard the Baltimore. In the Admiral's cabin he found Admirals McCann and Brown, Capt. Schley and Capt Remey, of the Charleston, who had previously been summoned to take part in the interview, and to hear what Capt. Manzam had to say about the condition of his ship, his run from San Diego to Tocopillo, and the manner in which he evaded the Charleston. As a result of the conference, it was arranged that a prize crew from the Charleston should go aboard the Itata this morning, and take formal possession of the ship. Just what led the insurgents to surrender the ship and arms is not known definitely, but the general opinion is that Admiral McCann informed the authorities that unless the cargo as well as the ship were given up to him he, in conformity with his instructions from the navy department, would take action to get them. The rebels have all they want on their hands now with Balmaceda's forces, and had no desire to bring down on them the enmity of Uncle Sam's naval forces here, including as they do such powerful vessels as the Baltimore, Charleston and San Francisco. The representatives of the congressional government have issued a statement, in which they say: "The congressional party have acted in strict honesty in making every atonement for having violated the law of the United States. There prevails here nevertheless the impression that its action, while strictly complying with the words of the compact, even exceed it in spirit, since the letter of Secretary Errazurinz considered exclusively that the offence committed in San Diego, and that the arms provided to be restored had been taken on board at San Diego. It is a fact that the Junta de Gobierno, in a communication addressed to Secretary Blaine, has called his attention to the fact that the Itata did not embark the arms at San Diego, but did so after she had sailed from that port and at that uninhabited island far from the coast. The Junta appeals to considerations of equity and humanity and have asked that while the Itata goes to San Diego the arms may remain here in custody of the American admiral, until judgment is rendered by the California courts.

A Shooting Case.

EUREKA, Cala., June 6.—Daniel Murray yesterday shot and seriously wounded James Craig, and slightly wounded Mrs. Zachgraf. The shooting was done with a shot gun, the charge taking effect in the face and neck of the victims. Murray was intoxicated and claims to have shot at some geese and hit Craig and Mrs. Zachgraf accidently. The latter claims the shooting was intentional and as the parties have been associated in a brewery and had much trouble it is thought the shooting was not purely accidental. Craig received a number of shots, but may recover. Murray is in jail.

Death of a Millionaire.

OMAHA, Neb. June 6.—Byron W. Read, a pioneer settler and the wealthiest land owner in the city, being rated at $2,000,000, died this morning aged 62. In his will he leaves a valuable piece of land upon which to erect a public library. His collection of incomes is also left to the city and he makes numerous charitable bequests, amounting in all to over $100,000. In early life Read was a telegraph operator. He was afterwards connected with the United States assay office.

U. S. Naval Changes.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Commodore Jas. Fife has been detached from duty at Boston and ordered to command the naval station at New London, Conn. Commodore Stanton has been detached from the command of the training ship Richmond, stationed at Newport, and ordered to assume the duties of Governor of the Naval Home, Philadelphia, on July 1. Captain T. Bunce has been detached from the naval station at New London, and ordered to command the training ship at Newport.

Landing of Columbus.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A delegation of distinguished gentlemen called upon Mayor Grant to-day to ask his co-operation in the projected celebration of the anniversary of the landing of Columbus, to take place on 12th October, 1892.

Guilty as Charged.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 6.—The jury in the case of James Hughes, manager of workman of the Clothing Cutters National Assembly, indicted on a charge of obtaining $10,000 from Allen Bros. & Co., by exhortion, this morning brought in a verdict of guilty. The jury was out all night. Judge Rumsey will pronounce sentence on Monday.

He Can Dispose of the Money.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 6.—Justice Bartlett this morning handed down the decision in the Kings County Supreme Court, denying the application of Richard O'Neill for an injunction restraining Eugene Kelly from disposing of the $3,488 left of the Irish fund raised at the reception of Dillon and O'Brien.

A Legation Damaged.

SANTIAGO DE CHILI, June 6.—An extensive and disastrous fire broke out in this city to-day. Among the buildings destroyed was one occupied by the British legation. The British minister, J. G. Kennedy, and Mrs. Kennedy, his wife, had a narrow escape from death. The German legation is damaged.

Fire in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 6.—The buildings of Cleve Hard were burned this forenoon; loss $15,000; insurance $10,000.

Overruled.

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—The court overruled the injunction in the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad case.

UNION NEWS.

A Concert For an Organ Fund—Fishing Season Commenced.

The last of a series of concerts in aid of a fund for providing an organ for the use of the Sunday School and other religious services, was held in the new Schoolroom Union, on Thursday evening last. There was a large attendance, every available seat being occupied. Mr. Andrew McKnight, J. P., occupied the chair. The following programme was efficiently carried out:

Votes of thanks to the performers and the chairman brought a pleasant evening to a close. The company dispersed at 10:30 p.m.

FISHING SEASON AT UNION.

The lovers of Isaac Walton's hobby are having excellent sport at the lake, and rivers flowing into the same. Some very fine hauls have been made, and the trout are in excellent condition. The snow on the glacier and mountains is melting fast and the lake is rising to a considerable height, but there is no likelihood of any damage being done as the boats are being looked after by the owners.

THE NEW SLOPE.

The powerful hauling engines have arrived, and are in position ready for work. The managers expect to load coal on the railway cars in about two weeks' time. The electric coal cutter is giving every satisfaction, and it is rumored that the company have ordered three more for use in the new mine.

KAMLOOPS ASSIZES.

Judge Spinks' Jurisdiction over Kootenay Declared Inoperative—Grand Jury's Presentiment.

(Before Mr. Justice Walkem.)

There were several criminal cases in which rather important points cropped up, and also more civil business than usual—enough to fully occupy Justice Walkem for three days. Amongst other things it was decided that the portion of the County Court Act under which Judge Spinks had claimed jurisdiction over Kootenay was, in the absence of a commission to him from the Governor General embracing Kootenay, inoperative, on the ground that his present and only commission specially limited his authority to the territorial area within the limits of Yale district as described in the commission. It had always been conceded that the Legislature could not appoint a new county judge to a vacant district, and as it could not do that, it could not appoint one of the existing county judges to fill that vacancy. The territorial limits of the judge's commission were indicated by the Governor-General under the power conferred upon him by the Confederation Act, and as that power was exclusively his, the local legislature could not usurp it. It could neither abridge nor enlarge those limits, hence it could not enlarge the area of Judge Spinks' commission, namely, Yale District, by adding, for instance, the District of Kootenay to that area. If the area defined in a commission could be thus altered, it could be so changed as to bear little or no resemblance to the original or appointed area, a contingency which never could have been intended.

Towards the close of the session the following presentiment, which was suitably replied to, was made.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Walkem:

May it please your Lordship—We, the Grand Jury, now assembled, desire to report as follows:

That, we have made a visit to the hospital, which we find retains its hitherto good name for cleanliness, order and comfort, to the inmates, and this, in our opinion, is a creditable reflection on the medical attendant, the nurse, and the directors.

We noticed the improvements to the building, now in course of erection, and were much pleased to see the laying out of the grounds with trees and grass plots.

The gaol, also, which we visited, we consider in a satisfactory condition, and for this state of affairs we believe credit is due to the officer in charge. We desire, however, to suggest the following improvements, namely, the extension of the window overlooking the yard, in such a manner as will afford the officer on duty a more commanding view of the prisoners. We think the present accommodation insufficient, more cells being required for the number of prisoners.

With regard to the late outbreak among the chaingang, we suggest as an improvement the appointing of an additional or assistant guard, more especially when the prisoners are at work on the outside of the gaol.

We regret the necessity we feel for particularly calling attention to the unhealthy and abominably filthy state of the back yards and closets of some of the hotels, as well as those at the rear of the buildings bordering the bank of the river. We consider the present condition of those parts prejudicial to the health of the people and the growth and reputation of the town.

Towards the better carrying out of justice in the neighboring districts, we suggest the advisability of the employment of an expert detective, when, on the occurrence of any violation of the law, he might at once proceed to the spot and collect evidence and assist in the conviction of the guilty parties.

While regretting the loss to the district of the valuable and well-tried services of Mr. Hussey, we can only refrain from congratulating him on his promotion to a more honorable and lucrative post; and whilst on this subject we embrace the opportunity of welcoming back to our district his predecessor, Mr. Tunstall.

In a former presentment we noticed that recommendations were made that the Grand Jury be in future more largely drawn from the outlying districts, in preference to those from the town of Kamloops and vicinity. We are strongly of opinion, however, that due regard has not hitherto been paid to the fact of the great expense entailed on Grand Jurymen coming from a distance of from 60 to 75 miles in a direction where neither railroads or steamboats exists. In regard to this matter, we think far more attention should be paid by the Sheriff to the more equal annual selection of Grand jurymen from each of the several surrounding districts.

Your Lordship's visit to the Eastern Provinces has been, we trust, conducive of both pleasure and health to Mrs. Walkem and yourself, and we feel proud to learn from your own lips that your desire to return to this Province was sufficiently strong to overcome any wish you may have had to remain amidst old memories. We sincerely trust the partiality shown for this section of the Dominion may be rewarded with such a measure of health and strength that your Lordship may long be spared to administer justice to the surrounding districts. H. D. GREEN-ARMYTAGE, Foreman.

Kamloops, B.C., June 2, 1891.

The weather has been very variable, but pleasant withal. Business is rather dull; and in stock little is doing, as the cattle have not yet arrived at their prime.

Donald Notes.

May 31—Sheriff and Constable Redgrave, R. A. Kingston, J. C. Steen, and Miss Kingston, left on No. 1 train for Kamloops, to attend the Court of Assize. Yesterday, all the flags on the government building and hotels were at half-mast for Sir John A. Macdonald, but at 8 a.m., this morning, the flags were hoisted up to the head of the flag staff, which gave the loyal people here great pleasure. Rev. Kemms preached the funeral service and the dead march was played in the Church of England before they found out that Sir John was not dead.

June 2—Court was held to-day by Thomas Evans, J.P., Constable Moodie was arranged before him for kicking Mr. Sharp, J.P., of Golden, out of an hotel. Constable Moodie, was fined $5 but the case is not finished yet.

June 3—Mr. Beasley and Miss Griffith, were married to-day in the Church of England. They entertained their guests at a garden party until No. 2 train arrived, then in a procession, proceeded to the train and left for the East. The town of Donald turned out to wish them God speed. The section men had to come in and shovel the rice off the track.

The Best Result.

Every ingredient employed in producing Hood's Sarsaparilla is strictly pure, and is the best of its kind it is possible to buy. All the roots and herbs are carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. So that from the time of purchase until Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared, everything is carefully watched with a view to attaining the best results. Why don't you try it?

The Keystone.

Regular action of the bowels is the keystone of health. The use of B.B.B. insures it and cures constipation, dyspepsia, etc.

E. B. Eddy's Indurated Fibre Ware has completely killed The Old Wooden Bucket, so sweet to sing about in connection with the moss-covered well, but To Smell! A very Abomination.

Gone, thank goodness. No more vile odors. No more hoops to fly off. No more leaky Pails and Tubs. No more misery for chambermaids. This ware is always sweet as the first kiss of love, but, unlike love, sweet all the time. Wouldn't smell a mite in 20 years—wouldn't shrink a particle in a life-time. Indestructible—impervious to liquids.

THE BACCARAT GAMBLERS

THE CASE CLOSED AND ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY.

Unabated Interest in the Proceedings—The Crowd Think the Trial as Good as a Play—Sir Charles Russell Waxes Eloquent.

LONDON, June 5.—There is plenty of comment upon the constant attendance of the Prince of Wales, which was wholly unexpected. Nobody thought he would come back after he stepped from the witness box, on the second day of the trial. His appearance, next day, was a genuine surprise and served to revive interest in the spectacle, which was dropping. He has not outwardly showed such interest in public events for years, and he lost no popularity in consequence. The cheers he was received with this morning at the judge's gate, were more ringing and hearty than ever. Purists find fault with him for acting as banker in a game of chance, and the Radicals chuckle over his carrying around his own checks; but the people of England like him none the worse. As long as an American minister taught poker with success in the drawing rooms of England, baccarat has been a fashionable and aristocratic amusement.

The jury in this case is establishing a record of audacity, which is bound to become historical.

Mrs. Lysette Green was again called to the witness box and her cross-examination was completed. In the course of it, mention having again been made of the counters used at Tranbycroft, the jury expressed the desire to see and handle the chips which were sworn to belong to the Prince of Wales. Loyalty looked aghast at this request.

Mrs. Arthur Wilson, wife of the owner of Tranbycroft, was next called to the box. She is a stout, British matron, with a florid face and a pleasant expression. She appeared to have braced herself for a painful duty. She was emphatic in her replies, and at times spoke with much emotion. She said she did not believe what her son told her about Sir William cheating until she saw it with her own eyes.

Sir Edward Clark, in cross-examining, succeeded in drawing out from the lady the admission that she did not tell her husband of the affair. He asked if her husband was not a business man and a man of the world. The witness pointed to Mr. Wilson, who was sitting on the bench by the side of the Prince of Wales, and said: "Judge for yourself." There was a dramatic pause which was followed by roars of laughter. Sir Edward Clarke was frequently worsted in the course of his cross-examination; but it was gathered from the whole of the evidence which he succeeded in eliciting that it was owing to the Prince of Wales' own desire that baccarat was begun and continued in her house though witness thought all were aware that Mr. Wilson objected to it. It was the Prince who proposed the use of the new table on the second night of the play. Witness declared she was unable to abandon the game, because His Royal Highness was eager to play.

Sir Edward Clarke who latterly has pursued a line of evidence derogatory to the Prince, emphasized these points. By means of his questions he strongly censured witness for allowing her son to entrap a guest of her house, and suggested that she should have seized upon an excuse to stop the card party. The lady bore herself well through this trying inquisition. She flushed often with anger, and her voice was choked with emotion. Lord Coleridge was evidently uneasy.

Sir Edward Clarke apparently sees no hope of success, except by prejudicing the jury against the defendants, to which all his efforts are now directed. The interest of the spectators is unabated.

The Earl of Coventry, one of the baccarat players, was the next witness. He is an elderly gentleman of genial appearance. He wore a black frock coat and high collar; his general make-up being of a sporting character. He is slightly deaf, and declaims loudly. His frankness appears to carry weight, but he seemed somewhat abashed when he was obliged to admit the secresy to which he consented in order to allow Col. Gordon-Cummings to remain in the clubs and mingle with society, although he (Coventry) was persuaded that his friend had cheated at cards.

His examination had not proceeded far, when the Chief Justice arose, the signal for recess. The auditors, better provided than hitherto, turned to lunch and lively talk, and under the vaulted roof the scene resembled a huge picnic in a cathedral crypt.

In half an hour the proceedings were resumed with Lord Coventry in the witness box. The Prince was absent, having gone to a levee at Buckingham Palace. Among the new faces on the bench was that of T. P. O'Connor. The witness was cross-examined by Hon. Edward Clark. Unperturbed, Lord Coventry toyed with his spectacles, and seemed to be on good terms with himself, the court and the Solicitor-General, whom he benevolently assisted in his cross-examination. He admitted that he had not wholly agreed to the precis drawn up for the defence previous to the trial. This he said with a friendly air towards Sir William. The tendency of the evidence he gave was to lessen the weight of the statements made by the Wilsons and the Greens. Although he did not say so, it is evident from his testimony that he signed the precis because others did.

The case for the defence having been closed, Sir Charles Russell began his address to the jury. It was a bitter and biting denunciation of the plaintiff, referred with contempt to his entreaty to the defendants to say they were mistaken and scoring him for his failure to demand that he be placed face to face with his accusers. He pointed out that Cumming's cool and unruffled demeanor in court refuted his own evidence, that he lost his head at Tanbycroft when the charge of cheating was brought against him. He drew a startling picture of Sir William sitting among his friends, conversing and cheating, stealthily adding counter to counter, and reaping the ill-gotten fruits. His action was baser than burglars' for he entered and robbed the homes of his friends. Sir Charles was never more spirited and striking and held the court spell-bound by his eloquence.

The Court adjourned before he had completed his address, and he will continue on Monday.

LONDON, June 5.—The Methodists of South Wales, at their quarterly meeting in Cardiff, adopted a resolution declaring that they learn with regret from the proceedings at the trial, before the High Court of Justice, that the Prince of Wales took part in a game of baccarat at Tranbycroft, on Sept. 8th, 1890; and thus giving encouragement to gambling in one of its most ruinous and insidious forms, and respectfully submit to His Royal Highness that such conduct lessens the respect that the Methodists have always inculcated for the Throne.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW.

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the DRAGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a sound man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

ONE FACT IS WORTH A THOUSAND THEORIES.

The Twenty-Year Tontine policies of the Equitable Life Assurance Society maturing in 1891 return the policyholder all the premiums paid, and the following rates of interest on the premiums which have been paid during the twenty years, in addition to the assurance of his life during the entire period.

20-YEAR ENDOWMENTS.

AGE.	A return in cash of all premiums with interest at the rate of
35	6 7/8 %
45	6 3/4 %
55	8 %

LIFE RATE.

Tontine period terminating at the end of 20 years.

AGE.	A return in cash of all premiums with interest at the rate of
35	2 3/4 %
45	3 1/2 %
55	5 1/2 %

The return on other kinds of policies is in proportion, depending upon the kind of policy and the premiums paid.

There is no assurance extant in any company which compares with this. The Equitable is the strongest company in the World and transacts the largest business.

SUITS TO ORDER

CHEAPER THAN EVER.

Since the formation of a union amongst the tailors in Victoria prices for clothing have advanced to such an extent that people are sending East for their suits. And we don't blame them, either, if they can save from $10 to $20 a suit. We pay union prices simply because we have to; not that we consider it right.

We were paying our men the same wages before union prices were enforced that we paid them ten years ago, when we received from ten to twenty per cent. more for our suits.

We have from ten to fifteen thousand dollars invested in tailoring, and we propose to turn it over at least twice a year, regardless of profits. To do this we will make suits cheaper than we did before we paid high prices for making up. Good Tweed and Serge Suits, $25.

Irish Tweeds, $27, $28, $30 and $32. If any other tailor in town will prove that these goods are not genuine Irish Tweeds we will donate a Thousand Dollars to any charitable institution that he may name.

Black worsted suits $40. You will get the same goods for $48 or $50 elsewhere. We intend to make a specialty of tweed suits for $30; regular price is $35 to $40. We have the store for our other business; it costs us nothing for the tailoring department; we have the stock; we have a first-class cutter, and we have capital enough to run it if we don't make a cent. So now is the time to get cheap suits to order.

We are going through the stock marking everything down. Don't take everything for granted. See our new schedule of prices.

THE DYING LEADER.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD is passing over to the "silent majority," and in his death the Conservative party will lose a leader, and Canada a man, who, if his intellect was not of the profoundest, must be rated as the most versatile, the most resourceful, the most magnetic and the most popular of all his contemporaries. It not infrequently happens, indeed it is most usually the case, that the man possessed of the quality of mind which makes for popularity lacks the elements of depth and stability inseparable from commanding a high degree of esteem and confidence. Thus, of a popular man, we often hear this remark: O, he is a good fellow, but he has no bottom. But Sir JOHN MACDONALD was not this kind of a man. A marvellous exemplification of the qualities which make for popularity, he combined therewith an order of mentality which, if not of the highest insured him the respectful and even serious hearing of his bitterest and ablest foes. Volatile without levity, grave without austerity, resolute without fierceness, resourceful, plausible, if never wholly right never wholly wrong, these it may be supposed, are fairly accurate characterizations of Sir JOHN MACDONALD.

Sir John Macdonald was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on the 11th January, 1815. When he was barely five years old, in 1820, his father, Hugh Macdonald, emigrated from Sutherlandshire to Canada and settled in Kingston, Ontario, then called Upper Canada. Sir John was educated at the Royal Grammar School, Kingston, chose the law as his profession, and was called to the bar of Upper Canada in 1836; was appointed Queen's Counsel in 1846, and subsequently became a bencher, ex-officio, of the Law Society of Ontario. He first achieved distinction as a counsel by his memorable defence of Von Schultz, who raided Canada in 1836, at the head of a small band of marauders. But it was not in the practice of his profession that he was destined to become one of the most prominent men of the American continent, but as a politician and statesman. He entered public life in 1844 as the representative of the city of Kingston in the House of Assembly, and continued to sit for this constituency until the federation of the provinces, in 1878, when he was defeated. Victoria, British Columbia, and Marquette, Manitoba, both subsequently returned him, but he chose Victoria, and sat as the representative of this city until 1882, when he was elected by both Lennox and Carleton counties. He sat in parliament for the former county, and at the general election of 1887 Carleton and Kingston both elected him. He was first appointed to public office in May, 1847, becoming Receiver-General of Crown Lands in the Draper administration. The following year the Government was defeated, and Sir John and his colleagues remained in opposition until 1854. During the interim he developed those powers of assiduity and tact, and by familiarizing himself with all the great questions of the day, acquired a knowledge which, with his natural born ability as a leader of men, served him so well in after life. From the very first of his political career, his ability was generally acknowledged, and his speeches on the Rebellion Losses bill and secularization of the clergy reserves, attracted marked attention. He opposed the former measure. In September, 1854, the latter question proved the issue before the people, and Mr. Macdonald entered the coalition cabinet of MacNab-Morin, pledged to settle the vexed question at once and forever. His training well suited him for the office which he accepted—that of Attorney-General—and during his sway the clergy reserves were secularized on a fair and equitable basis. In 1856, Sir Allan MacNab, the nominal leader of the Conservatives, succumbed to gout, and his young and active lieutenant, John A. Macdonald, was chosen to succeed him as leader of the Conservative party. This post he has held ever since, and in office and out of it he has exercised a degree of personal influence over his followers that has never been equalled by any other public leader in Canada.

In 1858 the Government was defeated, and the late George Brown was called upon to form a new Administration, which he succeeded in doing, but it was defeated on the first vote, when he gave way to Sir John, who again resumed power, taking the office of postmaster-general. He resigned this office the next day to resume his old portfolio of attorney-general. His ministers also changed offices, and this incident is known as the "double shuffle." The Government remained in power until 1862, when it was defeated on the militia bill, and Sir John remained in opposition until 1864, when on the the fall of the Sandfield Macdonald-Dorion ministry he was again returned to power. The government, however, owing to the frequent deadlocks, was unable to carry on the business of the country, or command the confidence of Parliament, and the proposition to federalize Upper and Lower Canada and the Maritime Provinces was received with enthusiasm as a way out of the difficulty. A conference took place between the leaders on both sides, and the question was fully discussed. Sir John attended as a delegate at the conference in Charlottetown, where the smaller confederation of the Maritime Provinces was under consideration, and, with his associates succeeded in convincing most of the gentlemen present that the larger union of all the British North American Provinces was much the more desirable scheme of the two. Another convention of delegates from all the Provinces was held a few months later in the City of Quebec, and at this meeting the plan of union was formed. Sir John was chairman of the London colonial conference, when the British North American Act was adopted, and all through was one of the leading spirits in forming the federation of the Dominion.

On July 1, 1867, the new constitution came into force, and Mr. Macdonald was sworn in as Privy Councillor and appointed Minister of Justice and Attorney-General. In recognition of his services he was created a K. C. B. by the Queen, and in 1884 received the grand cross of the same order. He remained Prime Minister until 1873, when the Conservative Government was defeated by the charges brought against it by what is known as the "Pacific Scandal." Sir John remained in opposition till 1878, when the Liberal party was defeated by the National Policy cry. Sir John then resumed the reins of government, taking the portfolio of the Minister of the Interior, and subsequently becoming President of the Privy Council and Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and his Government has not since known defeat.

Sir John has been at various times charged with the execution of delicate diplomatic missions. In May, 1871, he was appointed one of Her Majesty's Joint High Commissioners and Plenipotentiaries to act in connection with the commission named by the President of the United States for the settlement of the Alabama claims, resulting in the Treaty of Washington.

He has been a delegate to England and to other countries on public business very frequently. For his services in respect to the Treaty of Washington Sir John was called to the Privy Council of Great Britain in July, 1872, an honor seldom conferred on a colonial statesman.

In 1865 the University of Oxford conferred on him the degree of D.C.L., and subsequently Queen's University (Kingston), and McGill's University (Montreal) that of LL.D., and Trinity College, Toronto, made him D.C.L.

During his long political career, of over 44 years, Sir John has carried to a successful issue many important measures. He was also an able parliamentary debater. As a platform speaker he had the faculty of keeping the attention of the audience, and while his oratory was not as deep or as eloquent as that of other statesmen, it was certainly of that class more taking with the general public; and by his genial manner and ready wit he was able to make friends where many others made enemies.

Sir John was also a prominent member of the Masonic order; was (in 1875) the representative in Canada of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of England, and held the rank of past grand senior warden of the Free Masons of Canada.

WHY IMPECUNIOUS.

Under the heading of "Impecunious Provinces," the Vancouver Advertiser apprehends a "raid" on the Dominion treasury in case Mr. MERCIER's effort to negotiate a loan in Europe fails to materialize. On this point, all Canada, as well as the Advertiser, may well be apprehensive, for nothing seems to be more certain than that Quebec's loan will not be taken up in Europe. The dismal fiasco of the Argentine is too fresh in mind to make borrowing money on public credit, and such a credit as that of Quebec, an easy matter.

"We are well aware," continues the Advertiser, "that provincial financiers excuse this condition of affairs on the plea that it is necessary to incur large expenditures for the purpose of developing their resources, opening the country and making it and its natural wealth accessible." Is not our contemporary just the least bit disingenuous here? Was it not in the mind of the writer when he penned the foregoing that no small portion of this expenditure had been appropriated in the interest of the Conservative party? That, in other words, these public works so necessary for the purpose of developing the country, were bribery works, chiefly set on foot for the purpose of keeping alive the Conservative party? It will occur to those who have studied the situation that political as well as public exigencies were at the bottom of the appropriations which have reduced Quebec and one or two other provinces to impecuniousness. The question arises, hence, are not the people who have been persuaded to support this corrupt policy liable to be cajoled into others equally reprehensible? That they may be not without the range of probability. It is tolerably clear that it is not so much compulsory voting that is wanted in Canada as intelligent and honest voting. Not until ignorance is compelled to qualify itself for the exercise of the franchise, and not until a law is enacted which permanently disfranchises both the briber and the bribed, will it ever come to pass that politicians will cease to run and wreck governments.

About the only defence that is being offered by ministerial organs, in connection with the TARTE inquiry, is a protest about the using of private letters as evidence. The Conservatives are not addicted to this habit. Unless our recollection is much at fault, TUPPER & Co. made use of stolen private letters in the manufacture of campaign material.

The American press seems to be of opinion that Sir JOHN MACDONALD is inseparable from the cohesiveness of the Conservative party in Canada. Says the S. F. Examiner:

"There is no other party in the world to which the death of one man would be such a crushing disaster as that of Sir John Macdonald will be to the Tories of Canada. It may probably be said without exaggeration that the presence and leadership of Sir John Macdonald have been worth more to his party than the entire thirty-odd votes by which it holds power in the present Parliament. He has been more than a leader—he has been the cement that has held discordant elements together. Already the strife between Catholic and Orangemen has broken out. Quebec has one candidate for the leadership and the English provinces have another. The Conservatives will be in luck if they merely get beaten, without tearing themselves to pieces."

THE RAILWAY CONNECTION.

TO THE EDITOR.—Having noticed in yesterday morning's Colonist an account of the meeting of the Board of Trade held on the 4th instant, and the report of the committee appointed by the Board to ascertain the best terms upon which an all rail communication can be had by means of ferry boats with Victoria, I would state that taking into consideration the well-known abilities of the business men addressed on the subject and their ambiguous replies, it should be quite evident to the ratepayer that such a scheme is not practicable. The most favorable reply received is the one from the president of the N. P. Railway, (Mr. Oakes) who merely states that he will enquire into the matter on his first visit to Victoria.

If I remember aright, we were informed that the proposed bonus of $1,000,000, asked for by Mr. T. Lubbe on behalf of the North America & Victoria Railway Company, was virtually for the Northern Pacific Railway, which latter company I believe was represented in the person of a Mr. Schultz. The facts seem to be these, that Mr. Lubbe and his friends have a townsite on the coast of Washington (Port Crescent), which they have boomed, and as a last resort to save himself and his friends, Mr. Lubbe is now trying to get a cool million dollars out of Victoria, for the ostensible purpose of giving an all rail communication by a circuitous route, which would take a traveler from 12 to 21 hours out of his way in a journey to the east.

Permit me to state that for the welfare and benefit of Victoria, the only available route is via Bute Inlet, and if we only build 20 miles a year on this route we would be opening up a country which is tributary to Victoria in every sense of the word. Much might be written on this subject, and this letter may bring out further arguments why a road to the north should not be assisted by Victoria, and also by the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The only argument on the other side is to sell Port Crescent lots.

Victoria, June 6.

BAD LIGHTING RESPONSIBLE.

TO THE EDITOR.—I think it is about time the ratepayers of Victoria insisted upon the better lighting of the city. Last night upon proceeding home from my place of business at 11:30 by way of Blanchard street, I passed two men at the junction of Herald, who allowed me to cross the road to my own fence when they both sprang at me from behind. I turned round and struck one of them with a heavy walking stick, in the meantime the other closed with me and we both fell to the ground, my assailant underneath, he clutching me by the throat. I yelled "murder" and "police" as loud as I possibly could, the other man in the meantime striking me several blows in the face. Had the electric light been burning I could have identified both men, as this happened not 100 yards from the electric light mast on Blanchard. But no, the street was in total darkness, so dark, in fact, that both myself and a friend tried twice to find my hat which had been knocked off in the scuffle, and which was picked up by a police officer at daybreak the morning after.

Something must have disturbed the men, for they suddenly let me go and ran down Herald street. As soon as I recovered myself I blew a policeman's whistle I had in my pocket at least 20 times, but no one put in an appearance. I managed to make my way to the house, only some 10 yards from where this took place, and having procured assistance started out to look for my friends, but failed to see any signs of them. In looking about we ran across a shoe which must have fallen off the foot of the man I had on the ground. We immediately started down town to give information to the police.

The reason I write this is to draw the attention of the public to the insufficient lighting, especially in this one case. All the other lights in the city were burning brightly excepting this one, which certainly should be one of the best and I think is when burning, but this thing has happened too frequently of late. I know, and can be substantiated by several residents in this neighborhood, that this light is a failure beside even the smaller lights in the city.

For my own part I have been a ratepayer in Victoria for 23 years and think it rather hard that my life should be jeopardized in the manner it was on Thursday night, owing to the (to my mind certainly) light not burning. By inserting this you will perhaps save someone else the experience I had, and will also be doing me a favor.

Just Received.

In stock, new tub butter, 35 cents per pound; three pounds for $1. R. H. Jameson.

Present Your Bills.

The secretary of the Jubilee Hospital requests creditors of that institution to present their bills up to the 31st of May.

For Men Only.

At the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association to-morrow afternoon, Mr. John Calvert will deliver a lecture to men only. All men are invited to attend, and will be welcome.

On Her Way In.

The first steamer of the new line between here and the Orient, the Zambesi, will be here about 10 o'clock to-night. A message from down the Straits said she was on her way up at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Repairs Will Not be Completed.

The repairs on the Kingston will not be completed before Monday night. The City of Seattle, therefore, will leave Victoria, as usual, Sunday night, and continue on the run until the Kingston is in complete working order.

Putnam's Lecture.

Mr. Putnam will lecture in the Victoria Theatre, Sunday, June 14th, under the auspices of the Secular Union. His subject will be the "Genuiness, Inspiration and Infallibility of the Bible." An invitation will be extended to the clergy.

On the 26th of this Month

Russell, McDonald & Co.'s fourteenth regular half yearly drawing takes place. The usual sum of fifteen hundred dollars divided into twenty prizes will be distributed to the lucky winners. Tickets can be obtained until the hour for drawing.

Broke His Leg.

B. Wilson, of the Bank of B.C. is confined to the house to-day with a broken leg. Last evening he mounted a horse that has been running out for several months. The animal reared up and fell rolling on Wilson's leg. The break was set and the patient is doing well.

The Manzanita Sails.

Among the passengers who came down from Alaska by the steamer Mexico was Capt. E. Francis, who found the U. S. survey steamer Manzanita waiting for him at Departure Bay. He took charge of her and left again for Alaska where she will be engaged in looking after the buoys in Alaskan waters.

Will Not be Ready.

The steamer City of Kingston will not be ready to resume her trips across the Sound to-morrow evening, so the Seattle will have to make another run. During the time the Kingston has been laid up the crew have not been idle. The cabins and staterooms were thoroughly overhauled and the steward has been giving her a thorough cleaning up.

Will Enter the Dock.

The steamer Premier, Capt. O'Brien arrived from the Sound this afternoon, landing here instead of at Vancouver. Her passengers will take the Islander this evening for Vancouver. After taking on a supply of paint and other things necessary for a general overhauling and cleaning up, she will go to Esquimalt and enter the dry dock.

Cut Your Thistles.

The old stereotyped notice of the corporation warning property owners and tenants to cut their thistles growing on their property, is again being put into use. Last year the police magistrate was kept busy collecting fines from those who failed to comply with the by-law, so that it is expected that many have taken warning thereby, and will be a little more careful this year.

Bradshaw Sustained.

Collector Bradshaw, of Port Townsend, has received a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, which takes up several columns of the Sound papers, sustaining him in his action in fining the tug Lorne $844 in April last. The letter is one of the kind that only those who are acquainted with American documents would dare to fathom. Messrs. Dunsmuir are now waiting for the decision in the Pilot case.

Cleanliness Next to Godliness.

The supreme thing in a house after a good kitchen and a good cook, is a good, well lighted bath-room, with a large, roomy bath. Porcelain baths are becoming very popular just now, and the solid handsome ones manufactured by Twyford in England, and imported only by Braden & Stamford, Fort street, are the best article. Quite a number have found their way into the fine new homes now being built.

A Fortunate Escape.

A wagon containing 50 pounds of dynamite was being driven down a hill at Esquimalt near the naval hospital the other day, when the horse became unmanageable, and the contents of the box were scattered on the road. Strange to say, there was no explosion. Had the concussion exploded the cartridges, as it seems it might have done, the driver, and the wagon, and the horse, and a house close by, would have been annihilated.

Beginning to Move.

The American tourist has fairly started to move around, consequently the hotel-keepers will be kept busy. Victoria is never left off the list of stopping places, so the citizens get the benefit of the travelers' pleasure. Last evening two parties arrived in the city, one from California and the other from over the C. P. R. The latter party joins the Queen, which is due to-morrow morning with a party that fills every room on the floating palace.

A Valuable Painting.

The Board of Trade rooms have become more interesting since several donations from Mr. H. C. Beeton have been added to the book shelves. A visit there now, however, would be well repaid, there being on view a splendid painting of Vancouver, the discoverer of this Island, which Mr. Beeton intends to present to the board. The picture is a very handsome oil painting and valuable, not only on account of the work, but because of the history attached to it. The great discoverer is painted sitting with an atlas and books of voyages on a table beside him and a bible under his hand. The picture is at present hung in the board's meeting room.

At the Hill.

Visitors to Beacon Hill this afternoon could not help but enjoy themselves, as every outdoor game played in this part of the world were in progress. Cricket was represented in two parts of the held, the most interesting one, however, being the game Vancouver vs. Victoria. The other was a match between two junior teams. Victoria's second eleven playing against the Dockyard eleven at Esquimalt. The Victoria, a Primrose team were in the middle of a hotly contested lacrosse match, and the James Bay and Sunflower were playing baseball. All over the hill balls were flying, and boys yelling enjoying themselves and pleasing the spectators. The TIMES had gone to press before any scores could be obtained.

Marriage Bells at Donald.

The town of Donald was en fete last Wednesday, the 3rd inst., when Mr. H. E. Beasley, assistant superintendent of the C.P.R., was married to Miss Catherine Griffith, sister of Mr. J. E. Griffith, resident engineer of the company. The ceremony was performed at St. Peter's church, by the Rev. J. C. Kemm, at 12:45 p.m. Miss Florence Sprague was the bridesmaid and the groom was supported by Mr. Geo. Pullinger, of C.P.N. Co., Victoria. After the ceremony some 30 invited guests sat down to breakfast at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Griffith. The wedding presents were both numerous and costly. The happy couple left at 4 p.m. on the east bound train for Toronto and New York.

Police Court.

There was quite a large list on the police court docket this morning, including six Indian and white drunks, a case of wife beating by a siwash and one charge of selling liquor to Indians.

Two of the drunks, Klootchmen, were dismissed the rest were fined $5 each. Cap Sab, a West Coast Indian, for beating his Klootchman, was remanded till Monday. When asked if he was guilty or not guilty he said he was drunk and did not know anything about it. The woman was badly cut about the head and was quite lame from the effect of her bruises.

George Gardiner charged with supplying liquor to a brace of Indian women, was fined $50, and in default was sentenced to three months' hard labor.

Presentation to Mr. Winslow.

Mr. J. E. Winslow, electrician of the National Electric Tramway, left last evening on a business trip to England, where he goes to superintend the construction of an electric plant. Before leaving he was presented by the employees of the lighting department with a handsome miniature dynamo of solid gold, set with diamonds, and standing on a base, on the bottom of which is an appropriate inscription. The dynamo weighs about two ounces, is in perfect working order and altogether is a most beautiful piece of workmanship, reflecting great credit on the manufacturer, Mr. A. A. Clayton. A neater or more appropriate testimonial could not have been selected. Mr. Winslow expressed great delight for the present. He went east over the Northern Pacific Railroad and will take the steamer from New York.

Vernona Jarbeau.

He who misses seeing and hearing Vernona Jarbeau in "Starlight" will have matter for future regret. "Starlight" is a string of the brightest and most popular melodies culled from here, there and everywhere. There is very little dialogue, but there is plenty of the best sort of singing. Jarbeau herself is generous of her time and presence. She simply bubbles over with life and individuality. From the crown of the head she carries so jauntily to the toe of the slipper that sometimes twinkles in mid-air in a manner quite as bewitching as daring, the characteristic shows itself. She sings French songs, English songs, a topical song, dances with inimitable abandon and laughs with an infectiousness that no one can resist. Her prettiest bit of acting is perhaps in the little scene at the piano, and her most charmingly rendered song, "Where Are You Going, My Pretty Maid?" She has a clever set of people with her, and she is not afraid to let them make the most of their opportunities.

Church of England Notes.

A LADY'S LETTER TO LADIES.

The Style of Bonnets—Fashionable Fans—New Jewelery, Etc.

Tiny bonnets, composed entirely of artificial blossoms, are likely to be very much worn again this summer by young ladies, many of them being formed of two or three narrow floral bands, through which the puffs and curls of hair are plainly seen. Jewelled and spangled tulle of all descriptions is a very favorite material just at present for millinery purposes, its appearance being particularly light and airy. Some of the most stylish little bonnets worn are adorned with small fancy pins, the heads of which sometimes represent sprays of flowers or bunches of fruit. Jewelled ornaments in various designs being also very fashionable. Lilac, both purple and pale pink, the latter having a decidedly novel and dainty appearance, is just now an exceedingly popular artificial flower, the effect of it upon either large hats or small bonnets being always graceful and pretty.

Some of the newest and smartest evening shoes are of kid in the lightest and most fashionable shades, elaborately jewelled with tiny sparkling stones of various descriptions. The color of the kid usually harmonises with the wearer's gown.

Jewelled fans are one of the latest fashionable novelties, and, as many of them are exceedingly beautiful, they are likely to be very much patronized during the season. They are usually composed of either delicately-hued gauze, or real lace and are ornamented with floral or fancy designs, formed of small colored gems, which have a particularly brilliant effect, especially by gas or other artificial light. Silk fans, representing full blown roses, poppies, and other flowers with naturally colored leaves and petals, are very much favored by young ladies, their appearance being both simple and pretty.

While I was East, a short time ago, I was shown quite a new idea in jewelry, consisting of what appears, perhaps, to be more unique than effective. A combined watch and brooch. The watch is fixed at one end of a short chain, about three or four inches in length, and the brooch at the other, the latter being worn at the neck in the customary place, the watch and chain hanging down loosely below it. The back of the watch, which is the portion displayed to view, is usually ornamented with the owner's monogram, or any other fancy design which may be preferred.

Some of the prettiest soft silks for summer wear are effectively sprinkled over with moderately-sized chenille spots, either in a corresponding or contrasting color. Light silks covered with sprays of flowers, sometimes in a deeper hue, are likely to be very fashionable later on, a pale pink ground, for instance, being sometimes ornamented with bunches of crimson blossoms, or a delicate mauve with heliotrope or purple.

Beaded veils, which are lightly dotted over with tiny colored beads, are very much worn at present, although they are found to be decidedly trying to the eyes of their wearers.

Some of the freshest and smartest three-quarter capes and mantles for summer wear are of fine cloth, with deep yokes of gold, or silver embroidery, the more elaborate ones being profusely jewelled with brilliantly colored stones. Other equally pretty mantles are also of cloth in all the lightest and daintiest shades possible, such as mouve, silver grey and apricot color, some being braided in a corresponding hue, whilst others are plentifully adorned with either gold, silver, steel, or jet trimming. Ostrich feather bordering still continues to be an exceedingly popular adornment for mantles and evening cloaks, some of the latter having light collars, formed entirely of feathers.

Some of the lightest and prettiest print and muslin dresses at present seen have sleeves composed entirely of rows of lace or embroidery, the bodices and skirts being simply trimmed with the same to correspond.

On a recent public occasion, I saw a beautiful gown of bright dark green velvet, effectively embroidered with gold, the bonnet worn, being composed of gold colored net and green velvet trimmed with ospeys in the two shades to correspond.

Some of the newest sunshades are bordered with jewelled fringe, which has a somewhat heavy effect, especially upon light flimsy materials. Short silk sunshades in all colors, elaborately frilled, are likely to be very popular.

FINAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Eminent New York Optician Leaves for the East in a Few Days

And will Stop for a Short Time at Nanaimo and the Mainland Cities.

Mr. Seward regrets the necessity of his leaving Victoria while there are so many anxious to see him. His office will remain open an hour later each day during the remaining few days of his stay so as to accomodate as many as possible.

A large number of letters of gratitude have been received showing the grand result of the work done here, which has never been equalled before. Mr. Seward has proved his claim to be just, namely, as an expert optitian. He is second to no one in America.

Dr. McNaughton Jones, Dr. Milne, Postmaster N. Shakespeare, Collector A. R. Milne, and hundreds of others now wearing Mr. Seward's glasses speak of the work in the highest terms.

A record of the test and degree of the glasses given in each case is kept on the books for future reference, so that in case of accident, any person can have their glasses duplicated by addressing Prof. F. D. Seward, box 3,567, New York.

LIFE AMONG THE GIPSIES.

THE POET-TRAVELER'S EXPERIENCE WITH THE ZINGARI.

Spirited Picture of the Eventide Return to Camp—Gipsy Songs—Idyllic Days Among the Lagoons of the East Anglian "Broads."

Special Correspondence of the TIMES.]

THE BROADS, England, May 25.—It was a pleasant reunion, that one given me with gipsy friends, from the accident of crossing Furness Fells from Ruskin's home at Brantwood, and stumbling upon their picturesque camp at the fellside edge of Dalepark, where, in the late afternoon, I found only the old men and women, the sentineling gipsy dogs, and the very young gipsy chauvies or children in possession of the lovely glen which formed their temporary home.

By and by, as the shadows lengthened, the camp gradually began to awaken with returning life. The fires, which had smoldered the day through, were renewed by the now bustling old gipsy women, and the pots and kettles sung merrily of good things to come. Gipsy men and women began coming into camp from all directions, and nearly all came singly or in groups to the tent I had been given, to emphasize my welcome as the "Gorgio chal" (the non-gipsy friend to the gipsy), who was already known for his wanderings with their "brothers and sisters" in that far off wonderland, America.

Nearly all brought trophies of the day's outing. Women who had been among the Umbrian "statesmen's" farms were laden with poultry, butter, eggs, cheese, knots of homespun yarn, and many an article representing hours of toil, which had been exchanged for a bit of gibberish and a "fortune;" while those from the villages of Ambleside, Bowness or Windermere, and some who had even journeyed to far off Kendall, chattered gaily over trifling purchases and gewgaws of worthless tinsel and color. Now and then a gipsy appeared in the lively condition of spirits indicating that considerable liquor had entered into the day's jockeying among the wise yokels of the remoter hamlets; but while some general sport was had with the fellow, it was not difficult to see that his weakness was the subject of general disapproval. Indeed there is a universal unwritten law among gipsies that all men may profit from. The adage runs in this wise, "Only a gipsy fool letteth his wits fly away through drink, when he hath naught to do." And there is a world of wisdom in that little sentence, if these rude people did make it.

But soon the camp was everywhere filled with life and activity. Horses neighed, donkeys brayed, dogs charged and tumbled over children and between horses' heels, while old men and women seemed to renew their youth, and smiled and gabbled upon and with home comers, with each other, and as if with the empty air. Snatches of songs begun by gipsies at one extremity of the camp were taken up and finished with a flourish at the other. Here are single stanzas from two of them:

By davies (day) and rat (night)
Be as sly as a cat.
Or the bing (devil) will pull out his harro (sword)
With a wink through the hedge,
Or from off some near ledge
He will spring out and chop off your sherro (head)!

The night ha' come, the stars are out,
The campfires twinkle i' the hedge:
But sure as I'm a gipsy lout,
If "bobbies" sneak this camp about,
The stones will rattle from the ledge,
An' heads will break, my word I pledge—
My word I pledge, my word I pledge!

Mingled with the lusty notes of these English gipsy songs were merry "tally-yo-hos!" rung out on the evening air by returning horsemen to the camp-side singers. Now and then some dare-devil of a fellow (and often a gipsy woman, who is as much the horse's master as her Rommany lord) would come pellmell, full gallop into camp with whoop and hailoa, and dashing through the brush to tether, make the tree limbs rattle and clatter in passage, while approving shouts of half serious yells and objurgations followed with the laughing children and ecstatic dogs. Soon came the supper—the really one great universal home meal of the gipsy day. They were a long time at it, as they always are, and as much fun as food was taken.

Then, with the cheery camp fires brightly burning, here and there a lantern hung from elevated cart-thill or swaying copsewood, and with blazing cressets in honor of the stranger, first came my own tales of all the wondrous good fortune of their own kind in America; then children's games and all manner campside jollity, followed by singing and dancing after marvelous jigs and reels upon "rual ol' Cremonys;" until at last sleep and silence settled upon the Parkdale gipsy camp and the one "Gorgio chal" within it with that amplitude of rest which so comes with loving touch to no other people on earth as to this outcast Rommany race.

The outcome of my visit to my gipsy friends was making the acquaintance of a curious and interesting corner of England, of which I had never before heard, and which must also be to most Americans quite an unknown region. It is variously known in Great Britain as the "Norfolk and Suffolk Fens," the "Broads of East Anglia" and, provincially and by fowlers and sportsmen, as "The Broads." One of the followers of this gipsy Parkdale community annually visits the Broads, lives in a punt boat as a floating camp home, and while the women dicker and dukker among the lowly peasant families, the men, often with the women and children's assistance, make a good deal of money by weaving and selling all manner of rush and osier bags, pouches, crates and baskets required by fenmen, marshmen, eel and mussel catchers, and the numberless sportsmen and yachting parties that frequent the region.

Our party comprised "ol' Gran'pop" Wharton, tinker, fiddler and what-not; his son Urish Wharton, a splendid type of the shaggy, huge, manly, kind hearted English gipsy—a huge hulk of a son, with his father's sunny nature and frame, the wife, little, sharp faced, sharp eyed and sharp tongued; three as pretty gipsy girls as one could wish to find for poem, romance or idyllic company—Fashion, Melinda and Bess—and a number of gipsy brats of both sexes and all sizes and ages, so bewilderingly mixed with the family dogs that assortment and description are needless.

What with visiting gipsy friends at Keighly, Doncaster and Lincoln, we were three days reaching our destination, the village of Hickling, near Hickling Broad, in Norfolk, and a short tramp from Hickling, accompanied by a village cart well laden with gipsy belongings, brought us to the water side. Here, hard by an old daub-and-wattle cottage, whose peasant owner roared out an alarming welcome, we found our punt. This was already in fine order for the season, the cottager having cared for it in winter, and got it in readiness against the gipsies' coming; and in an hour more the floating summer home was launched, the evening meal in preparation, and snug quarters for all the motley crew arranged for the night.

Consulting the map of England, it will be noticed that the shires of Norfolk and Suffolk push out boldly from the nearly north and south English coast line into the German ocean. The shore is here a mass of sand hills and dunes. Nearly the entire surface of the two shires behind it is but a few feet above the level of the sea, and in many respects is similar to Holland. The whole eastern portion of the shires is dotted with extensive reedy and marshy sheets of water, of but from three to six feet in depth, with a hard, smooth bottom of marl. These lakelike marshes or lagoons are feeders to the Bure, Yare and Waveney rivers, all of which form confluence, and flow lazily into the sea, at the ancient city of Yarmouth. These lagoons are provincially called "The Broads." No one knows how or when the term originated. Their borders are chiefly flat and marshy. But many are richly wooded to the water's edge, giving them a peculiarly picturesque beauty, particularly in contrast with wide, flat or slightly undulating fens by which they are surrounded.

Altogether there are nearly fifty of these broads, all communicating with each other by lazy currents called "dykes," or with the rivers, which they feed, and their total water surface is about 5,000 acres. They teem with fish—the roach, bream, perch and pike—and are the resort of countless water fowls. Eels and mussels are taken from them by the ton. In their quiet, their unusual diversity, the characterful folk who live beside them, the almost countless miles of river and dyke waterway for small boating and yachting, the quaint and sunny old inns of call dotting here and there the silent shores, and the genuine possibilities for securing fish and game among them, they no doubt possess sweeter and subtler charms than any other known resort in England to the naturalist and sportsman.

My tawny friends belonged to neither class, but our house boat possessed quite as many provisions for necessary comfort as many of the hundreds of aristocratic yachts which haunt the region, and its crew and passengers were quite as care-free and merry. The boat itself was about twenty-four feet in length and perhaps eight in breadth. Properly speaking, there was neither "fore" nor "aft," but the terms were interchangeable at will. At one end was a little compartment, having at its own extreme end a comfortable bed for the gipsy and his wife, with a capacious door, closed "locker" beneath. In this all the provisions and valuables were stored. Extending toward the middle of the boat were four bunks, two on either side, with sliding windows above.

In these slept Fashion, Melinda, Bess, and a couple of the lesser progeny. Still in front of this was the most curious compartment of all. In its center, on the bottom of the punt where there had been made a solid bed of baked clay, shaped like a gigantic saucer, was the gipsy fire that is never allowed to go out; and above it the real gipsy crooked iron kettle stick, firmly embedded in the clay. Here is where our kettles sung, and where the sweet perch and luscious pike were broiled, while the smoke escaped sometimes through a round hole in the roof, but generally and principally where it listed. This was kitchen and parlor in our boat house. Necessary utensils hung against the walls, but could not quite hide many efforts at decorative art, from the illustrated papers, pasted solidly in their places, and given antique and generous coloring from the smoke of the burning "hovers" of peat.

Amidships was our salon. It was not large, but as "Gran'pop Wharton" remarked, "Hit 'ad good prospecs, an' airy ones!" This was covered by an old sail that had once done duty with the Yarmouth herring fleet. Here our hearty meals were taken, and this place was also the workroom where the nimble fingers of the gipsies wrought the pouches and baskets of flag and osier. Beyond this, and extending to the end of the boat opposite that occupied at night by father, mother and daughters, was a little shedlike coop where the gipsy grandfather, the huge lad, myself and a few of the children had comfortable bunks for the night, and on top of this, something after the fashion of the "upper deck" of our American willow ware hawkers' wagons, was a sail covered place where the stores of baskets and pouches were kept until sale—the showroom, as it were, for the fishers and hunters of the lagoons.

Then came the nights and days of this strange, quaint life with my gipsy friends among the "Broads." We seldom remained long at one mooring. There were countless cottages of farmers, fenmen and marshmen to be visited. The gipsies were welcome everywhere. Old anglers and fowlers paused in their wherries, gave cheery greetings, often made purchases, and never passed without flinging "white money" into our outlandish punt. Many of the passengers of yachts visited patronized and tipped us handsomely for our ever ready secrets of where the perch and pike were hiding. All day long it was greeting and parting—now a wherry with a single occupant, fierce and restless in quest of game; now a boat load of roisterers, careless of all but carelessness and enjoyment; now a market boat being "polled" or rowed, or both, to the market village, with the entire family on board, as in Holland; and now perhaps some lone naturalist in hungry, harmless quest of rare butterflies and bugs.

Then came evenings when the sun went down in forests of waving reeds, flaming the thatches of some low-lying cottage on the opposite shore, wierdly lighting the arms of the huge windmills of the region, bringing to a looming nearness the grim Norman towers of some far olden church, or gilding the top of some medieval ruin as with gold. Then as it sank from sight the waters for a moment were purple, the reeds puce, and then, in another moment, everything was pitchy black until the stars, shining in the depths above and from the waters beneath, seemed to envelop all. Then the songs and chirps of myriad insects, the whirr and splash of late homing waterfowl, and the witching whispered soughing of the breeze in the rushes and the reeds. And then "Gran'pop Wharton," hugging his thin old fiddle to his thin old breast, played many a gipsy lullaby tune that seemed to merrily or plaintively answer back the witch tongues of the reeds, until, as the "peat hovers" flickered fainter and fainter in our cabin, all nature in the "Broads" seemed to have gone with us into the land of silences and dreams.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

A BY-LAW

To aid the British Columbia Agricultural Association.

WHEREAS the British Columbia Agricultural Association is an association duly incorporated under the laws of the said Province for the protection and welfare of mechanical and industrial operations;

AND WHEREAS the Corporation of the City of Victoria have determined to aid and assist the said Association in its operations by giving to the said Association the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) for the purpose of erecting exhibition buildings;

AND WHEREAS the said Corporation are authorized to make such grant by sub-section 13 of Section 96 of the Municipal Act, 1891;

AND WHEREAS for the purposes aforesaid it is intended to raise by way of loan upon the credit of the City the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars;

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $1836 to be raised annually by special rate for paying the debt to be hereby created and the interest thereon;

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Corporation according to the last revised assessment roll being for the year 1890 is $9,358,194;

AND WHEREAS for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the principal of the said debt intended to be hereby created according to the Municipal Act, 1891, an equal special rate of 21-1000 of 1 per cent. on the dollar will be required;

AND WHEREAS it is intended to reduce the general rate so that the said special rate shall not increase the total rate of taxation;

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by the Mayor and Aldermen of the Corporation of the City of Victoria as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said City of Victoria to raise by way of loan from any person or persons or body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars and cause the same to be paid in to the Treasurer of the said Corporation and the said sum of twenty-five thousand dollars shall be paid out by the said Treasurer to such person or persons in such sum or sums as shall appear by the certificate of the Board of Trustees hereinafter mentioned to be entitled to same.

2. There shall be appointed a Board of Trustees of said Association and the same shall consist of five members, two to be appointed by the said Association and three by the said Corporation.

3. Immediately upon the appointment of the said Board of Trustees the whole property of the said Association shall vest in said Trustees, their successors, executors and administrators.

4. If the said Trustees so to be appointed as aforesaid or either of them shall die, go to reside abroad, refuse or become incapable to act in the trusts hereinafter set forth, the place of the trustees dying or going abroad, refusing or becoming incapable the said trusts shall be filled by the appointment of a new trustee or trustees by the said Association in the case of the two trustees appointed by them and by the said Corporation in the case of the three trustees appointed by them.

5. The duties of the said Trustees shall be to see that the said sum of twenty-five thousand dollars is wholly and properly expended by the said Association in making bona fide, permanent improvements upon the property of the said Association and in no other manner whatever.

6. The said Association shall keep the building so to be erected in good and substantial repair, reasonable wear and tear excepted, and in the event of the said Association ceasing to carry on its operations upon the premises upon which the said sum of twenty-five thousand dollars shall have been expended, then the said sum of twenty-five thousand dollars shall be a first charge thereon.

7. The acceptance by the said Association of the benefit of this grant shall be conclusive evidence of the assent of the said Association to the foregoing clauses of this by-law.

8. It shall be lawful for the said Mayor to cause any debentures to be issued for such sums of money as may be required either in currency or sterling money, not less than five hundred dollars ($500) each, or the sterling equivalent of that sum, and each and all such debentures shall be sealed with the common seal of the said Corporation, signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Clerk of the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Victoria.

9. The said debentures shall be payable in twenty years from the date hereinafter mentioned for this by-law to take effect, at the office of the said Treasurer of the said Corporation at the City Hall, Victoria, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

10. The said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of five per cent. per annum from the date thereof which interest shall be payable half-yearly at the office of the said Treasurer.

11. For the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest to become due thereon, an equal special rate of 21-1000 of one per cent. on the dollar, shall in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all rateable property within the said city of Victoria during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

12. That it shall be lawful for the said Municipal Council from time to time to purchase any of the said debentures, and such debentures shall be so expressed as to entitle the said Council to redeem and purchase the same on paying the amount thereof and interest due thereon at the date of such purchase to the holder or holders thereof.

13. This by-law shall before the final passage thereof receive the assent of the ratepayers of the said Corporation in the manner provided by the Municipal Act, 1891, and shall take effect on the 27th day of June, A.D. 1891.

14. The said Mayor shall not issue any of the said debentures until the Corporation of the City of Victoria shall request him so to do.

15. This by-law is passed upon the express understanding that the said Association shall employ no Chinese in or about the works carried on by them.

16. This by-law may be cited as "The Agricultural Association By-Law."

Passed the Municipal Council the 22nd day of May, A.D. 1891.

TAKE NOTICE that the above is a true copy of the proposed by-law upon which the vote of the municipality will be taken, at Burnes' building, Bastion Square, for Yates Street Ward; at the City Hall for Johnson Street Ward; at the Hook and Ladder House for James Bay Ward, and at the City Council chambers for the remaining portion the municipality, on Tuesday, the 9th day of June next, and that the polls will be kept open between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

WHAT TUPPER SAID

WHEN HE FIRST MARCHED DOWN TO WASHINGTON

And Then Marched Back Again—More Party Politics Than Actual Business Talked—Good Reason to Hope for a Satisfactory Arrangement.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The first installment of papers dealing with the Washington City reciprocity negotiations have been laid before the Dominion Parliament. When Newfoundland negotiated its treaty Sir Julian Pauncefote cabled to the colonial office that Canadian opinion should be invited. Simultaneously Sir John Macdonald communicated with Sir Charles Tupper, urging him to enter an objection on the ground that it would be injurious to Canada, and would violate the Imperial policy in considering the Atlantic fisheries as a whole. Letters which indicate the attitude of Mr. Blaine toward Canada's proposal are missing. For the publication of these permission has not yet been obtained.

One interesting communication, dated January 23, is from Lord Knutsford, Colonial Secretary. He says that the Newfoundland ministers are willing to negotiate for arrangements with Canada on a basis similar to the United States, and Her Majisty's Government strongly hopes that the Dominion will, on this understanding, withdraw its application. The reply to this is not given.

The most important communications are the reports of Sir Charles Tupper of interviews with Mr. Blaine. Tupper gives the details of the first talk with Blaine in company with Pauncefote, and says:

I told Mr. Blaine I wished at the outset to recognize the accuracy of the statement contained in his letter to Pauncefote, which I had seen, in reference to the invitation to open negotiations regarding reciprocal trade arrangements between the two countries, in that I believe it arose from the negotiations which had recently taken place between the United States and Newfoundland; that a desire was expressed by Canada to be included in any arrangements such as had been understood to have been contemplated by the United States and Newfoundland, and that upon that being communicated to him by Pauncefote he had expressed his willingness to open negotiations for reciprocity trade arrangements between Canada and the United States, assisted by delegates from the Dominion Government, the negotiations to be informal and to a certain extent of a confidential nature until they could assume a more formal character if any result was arrived at. Blaine said he understood that Canada had taken exception to the proposed arrangements with the United States by Newfoundland. I admitted that such was the case, and explained that the interests of Canada and Newfoundland had always been regarded as inseparable. I told Mr. Blaine I wished to remove the idea, if he entertained it, which had been promulgated in Canada and the United States, that the present government of the Dominion was not warmly in favor of the most friendly relations with the United States. In an article which I recently sent over my own signature to the North American Review, I had undertaken to give conclusive evidence upon that point, and I needed further only to refer him to the fact that when Sir John Macdonald, who was one of Her Majesty's high commissioners, submitted to parliament for approval the Alabama treaty, which settled all then pending questions between Canada and the United States, he was fiercely denounced by the leaders and press of the Liberal party for having basely sacrificed the interests of Canada in his endeavors to promote friendly relations between Canada and the United States. I added that I had experienced the same treatment from the same party when I submitted for the approval of parliament the Treaty of Washington City of 1888. Of course, in 1866, and subsequently in 1885, when the treaties which gave United States fishermen common rights with ours were abrogated, in consequence of the action of the United States, we were thrown back on the treaty of 1818; but statements that Canada then resorted to a sharp construction of that treaty with the object of promoting freer trade relations with the United States, were erroneous. We were compelled, in justice to the rights of our own fishermen, who were met with high duties in the United States market to protect them. Mr. Blaine desired to assure me that outside of individual differences of opinion there was no interest taken by the members of the congress of the United States in the recent Canadian election and they had taken no active part to influence the result of the election. Continuing, I said Canada was most anxious to have the freest and most friendly relations with the United States, consistent with the interest of both countries. Mr. Blaine said he was free to admit that the treaty of 1854 was not abrogated on commercial grounds, but in consequence of a feeling that Canada sympathized with the Southern States in their conflict. I replied that it was difficult to see upon what basis that opinion could be entertained; that it was admitted that no less than 40,000 Canadians fought in the Northern army to maintain the Union, while I did not suppose forty were on the other side. Mr. Blaine supposed that the very large bounty had a great deal of influence in the matter. I then said that the unhappy conflict had taken place previous to confederation, but I could speak with some accuracy of the province of Nova Scotia, with which I was then connected; that the legislature of Nova Scotia passed a resolution deploring the war, and one of the sharpest of international questions arose, as he would remember, in connection with the Chesapeake incident in the harbor of Halifax. Sir John Macdonald and party had the strongest desire to promote reciprocal trade between the two countries, and their hopes in that direction were greatly strengthened by the decided measures which Mr. Blaine had taken to promote reciprocal trade with other countries, and I could not see why he could not with great advantage to the United States, as well as Canada, extend to the north the same policy he pursued with countries to the south as trade was very much smaller with them than that between the Dominion and the United States. I said the fact that he had expressed his readiness to receive the representations that Canada wished to make would show that he was quite open to consider that question. I was further strengthened in my views, I added, by the disposition he had shown to make reciprocal arrangements with the colony of Newfoundland. Some question then arose between Sir Julian and Mr Blaine as to the Bond negotiations. Sir Julian explained that Bond had no authority to negotiate in any other way than through him. Blaine said it did not appear necessary to negotiate any treaty with Newfoundland, as that colony had expressed its readiness to give to the United States privileges they enjoyed by their own action, and they proposed not only to give bait to United States fishermen, but to refuse to give the same privilege to Canada. I told Mr. Blaine that the bait act in Newfoundland had received the assent of Her Majesty upon the distinct pledge that Canadian vessels would not be affected by it. Her Majesty had the power to disallow any bill that might be passed upon the subject by the colony. Upon the conclusion of the interview I thanked Mr. Blaine very much for his courtesy.

Following this is Sir Charles Tupper's report with regard to his doings at Washington City when accompanied by Sir John Thompson and Mr. Foster. It appears that Sir Julian's telegram about Blaine's desire to postpone the conference did not reach Sir Charles in time, and he had no intimation of it until the delegates reached Washington. Mr. Blaine, meeting them, expressed great regret at their failure to receive his message. He said the president was anxious to be in Washington during the negotiations, and requested that they be deferred until a later day, as he had made arrangements, which could not be changed, for an immediate visit to the West, and Mr. Blaine also mentioned that the president said that as there would be no meeting of the Senate before December no inconvenience, he trusted, would arise from the postponement. The date was later fixed for October 12 next. In conclusion Sir Charles says:

I may add, after carefully thinking over all that has occurred, that I consider there is good reason to hope that fair arrangements may be made with the Government of the United States in relation to the important questions contained in Lord Stanley's dispatch to Lord Knutsford of December 18, 1890.

ADJOURNED MEETING.

Salaries Fixed for New City Officials—Looking to Railway Connection.

The adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last evening in the committee rooms. Mayor Grant was in the chair and a full board of aldermen was present.

The report of the Sewerage Committee, recommending the appointment of Mr. Harrison as inspectors of sewerage works was adopted.

The salary of the inspector of sewerage was fixed at $125 per month, subject to dismissal at any time without notice.

The sewerage commissioners were also given power to appoint assistant inspector as required at a salary of $4 per day.

The by-law empowering the council to appoint a street commissioner was passed. The salary of the Commissioner Mr. Lynn, who was elected to fill the position, was fixed at $125 per month.

It was moved and seconded that the communication and enclosures of the Board of Trade re the coming visit of Mr. Oakes, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, be accepted, and that the mayor and aldermen wait on Mr. Oakes when he arrives to discuss the subject of securing railroad communication for Victoria with the Mainland.

After some discussion on the finances of the city the Council adjourned.

COAL

The New Vancouver Coal Mining & Land Co., L'd.
(FORMERLY THE VANCOUVER COAL CO.),
ARE THE LARGEST COAL PRODUCERS ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

THE NANAIMO COAL
(Used principally for Gas and Domestic Purposes).

THE SOUTH FIELD COAL
(Steam Fuel).

THE NEW WELLINGTON COAL
(House and Steam Coal) are mined by this Company only.

THE "NANAIMO" COAL gives a large percentage of Gas, a high Illuminating Power, unequalled by any other Bituminous Gas Coal the world, and a superior quality of Coke.

THE "SOUTH FIELD" COAL is now used by all the Leading Steamship Lines on the Pacific.

THE "NEW WELLINGTON" COAL, which was introduced early in the present year, has already become a favorite fuel for domestic purposes. It is a clean, hard coal, makes a bright and cheerful fire, and its lasting qualities make it the most economical fuel in the market.

The several Mines of the Company are connected with their Wharves at Nanaimo and Departure Bay, where ships of the largest tonnage are loaded at all states of the tide. Special dispatch is given to Mail and Ocean steamers.

A DAMAGING RUNAWAY.

The Butcher Horse Causes a Heavy Bill of Damages.

The residence of Mr. Baker, of Pembroke street, was almost completely wrecked this morning by a horse belonging to the B. C. Cattle Company. The animal, a fine one, started kicking, became unmanageable and ran into the sidewalk, throwing his driver, J. Meldram, and a lad named Chas. McDonald out. He then kicked himself loose of the cart and started in to damage the house. Entering by the back door, he commenced on the kitchen first, scaring out the lady who was in there. He then began throwing his hind legs around the kitchen, hitting the stove more than once and succeeding in knocking it down. The dining room came next, and besides doing other damage there, he kicked the sewing machine out of the window. The driver, accompanied by other men, appeared on the scene at this time, but they did not find it an easy matter to get the animal out. He started for the front door, which being locked, he almost succeeded in kicking down, breaking the glass and doing other damage. He then started to retrace his steps, when he was secured. He had not finished, however, for as soon as he reached the kitchen he re commenced kicking the stove. The side of the house was also bulged out.

The damage done will amount to nearly $200, but luckily no one was badly hurt, which would undoubtedly have been the case if there had been any small children in the house. Mr. Meldram and his companion, although thrown out pretty suddenly, were not badly hurt. The horse, however, had to pay for his fun by being badly scratched around the legs and body. The body of the cart was almost completely demolished.

IMPORTANT LAND SALE

Monday, 15th June, 11 a.m.

Oak Bay Ave. & City Property

I have been instructed to sell at my sales rooms, Fort and Langley streets,

37 FINE LOTS 37

Fronting on Oak Bay avenue and adjacent streets, averaging about 63x120 each. This property is a subdivision of 10 acres, being a part of Section LXXIV, Victoria District. All these lots are very desirable building locations; the soil is first-class loam, having a good drainage. In fact there is no finer situation in the surrounding property, and is only a short distance from Fort street. The Electric Tram Cars will run past them in a short time (about 1st July). The Oak Bay avenue has been recently graveled, and there is no doubt but this will one of the finest and most fashionable drives from the city to the beautiful beach at the end of this avenue. These lots are all surveyed and staked off. Conspicuous posts will be placed on the land, so that a stranger will be able to go and inspect any of these lots with the aid of a map of the property now in the press, and which will be ready for distribution at an early date.

This is one of the best opportunities ever offered to acquire a good homestead, as they will be sold absolutely

WITHOUT RESERVE.

The terms are:—⅓ cash; ⅓ six months; ⅓ twelve months, with interest at 7 per cent.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

Subdivision Lot 4, and part of Subdivisions 1, 2 and 3 of Suburban 5-acre lot, Lot 8, Victoria city, together with a large and commodious house and stables thereon. This property is on North Park street, and was formerly occupied by the late U. Nelson.

Terms of sale, cash.

—ALSO—

At corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Fort Street.

Lot One, on which is erected a fine and commodious two-story brick residence, with stone foundation, containing eight rooms and conveniences. There is a beautiful view of the Straits from this property.
